

How To Create A Pitch Deck That will get you Funded

Fundraising is getting harder

Since the 2021 fundraising boom we're seeing a declining trend in early-stage investments. Investors are increasing their demands forcing founders to work harder to get funding

To get investors attention, founders must create a great first impression making the pitch deck a crucial part in their fundraising efforts

But most founders don't understand what investors are looking for...

Which lead them to focus on the wrong things, hurting their chances of getting funded

This guide will solve that...

The Investor-Founder Gap

Investors are business and profit oriented

Founders must bridge that gap if they want to get funded...

Founders are product and customer oriented

It's time to put your Founder's
hat aside and start to think like an investor...

The VC Business Model

You can't really understand how investors think without understanding their business model

- VC firms invest LPs money
- Due to high risk, the model predict only 10% success rate
- Which translate to a need to >10X ROI to generate positive returns on the fund

This translate to these numbers

10%

Hit Rate

5-6

Failures

2-3

Break
Even

1

Massive Success

What's the PURPOSE of a Pitch Deck?

It's NOT about which template to use or which slides to include

It's NOT about the team or your product

And it's NOT even about the market or the industry...

It's all about helping you to get investors to understand how YOU are going to make THEM >10x return

Why?

Because investors know their markets and why they invest in them
They already believe in that market's opportunity

And they are looking for the opportunity that will give them the highest ROI with an acceptable risk

Investors look at startups as a financial vehicle, which is very different than how a founder looks at a startup. They are looking for someone that can convince them that they get the job done. It's your job to convince them of that

And, every startup is unique, with its own strengths, story and circumstances That's why a template won't work...

Shoot for the stars AND show how you plan to get there

Investors need to see the >10x ROI potential and still have the confidence that you understand the steps required to get there

How to convince investors that you are the one to get the job done?

Show traction (validation / results)

Have a unique ability (tech or otherwise)

Know your numbers

Have a strong reason to want to solve the problem (founder-problem fit)

Have a fully competent team (self-sustaining)

Have a new and/or unique insight on the market or problem you are solving

Have a deep understanding of your market and competition

Access to restricted/unique resources

A big vision with a clear plan to get to the next milestone (know what you need)

Use all these points (and more) to show them how...

What questions should your deck answer?

Why YOU?
And why should investors listen to you?

Why NOW?

How much money will it make? And how?

What do you need to get it done?

Remember that it's only your first date...
There will be plenty of opportunities to get into the fine details (like how your product works) later

Slides in a pitch deck

Think of your slides as chapters to your story, or parts to your machine.
Use the slides you need in the order that create the most compelling story for your startup

Slides in a pitch deck – Company's Purpose

This slide is usually the opener. It includes your company's name and a tagline explaining what you do or why you do it (higher purpose/mission)

Slides in a pitch deck – Why Now

Many startups were born from a major shift in the economy, the markets or new regulation.

If your startup was born from such a change, it is important to explain why this change created this opportunity and how are you going to capitalize on it.

Investors are looking for such opportunities because it gives them first mover advantage.

Slides in a pitch deck – Business Model

Investors see startups as a financial vehicle to generate a profit which means they would want to know how are you planning to generate revenue

Slides in a pitch deck – Problem

At the core of every product there's a problem it solves. This is where you describe that problem in simple terms and explain why it is not yet solved (your reason to exist)

Highlight any unique angles and/or insights you have about the problem

The right investors should be able to easily understand and relate to the problem.

Slides in a pitch deck – Solution

How are we solving the problem

This is where you present your solution and sell the dream (the full scope of your vision)

Also,
Highlight any differentiating factors you have

Slides in a pitch deck – Product/Roadmap

Early-stage products are not that interesting (sorry, but they will probably change)

What you did till now and what you are planning to do is much more important

Talk about results, numbers and milestones to describe your progress and plans

Slides in a pitch deck – Team

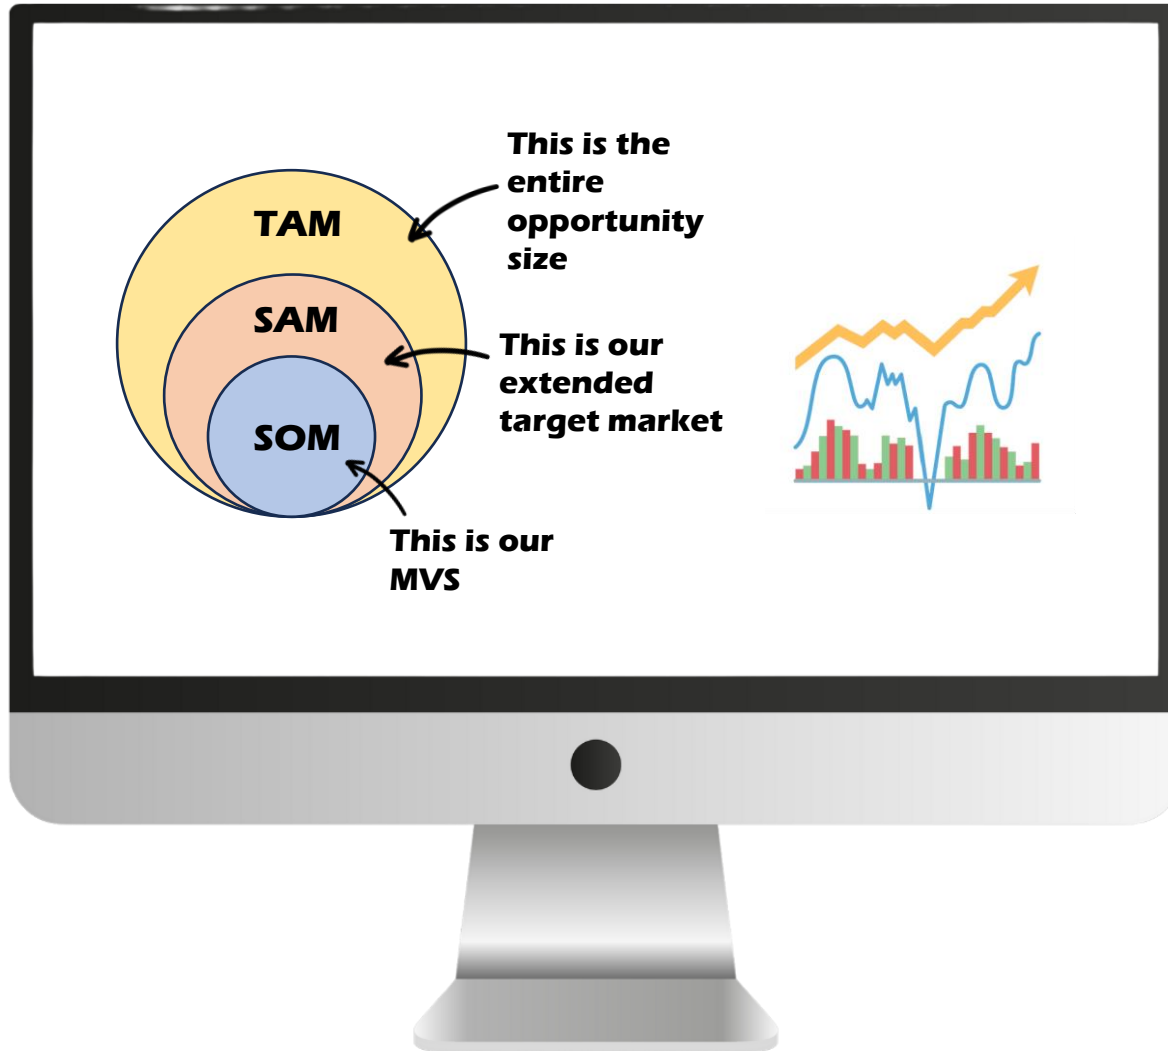

The most important asset most early-stage startups have is their team. Showcase your team's strength and connection to the problem. Highlight any past experience that can boost your team's credibility and experience

Remember

Investors are looking for a team that can get the job done...

Slides in a pitch deck – Market Size

The market slide is the most underrated slide in most decks.

Investors usually have good understanding of the market and are looking to see if you know it even better than them.

They are looking for your GTM plans (SOM -> SAM -> TAM) and can judge how you segment the market, and from there your business/market understanding.

A good market size slide can go a long way in impressing investors, and not just because of the market size...

Show trends, segments and any other information to justify your GTM plans

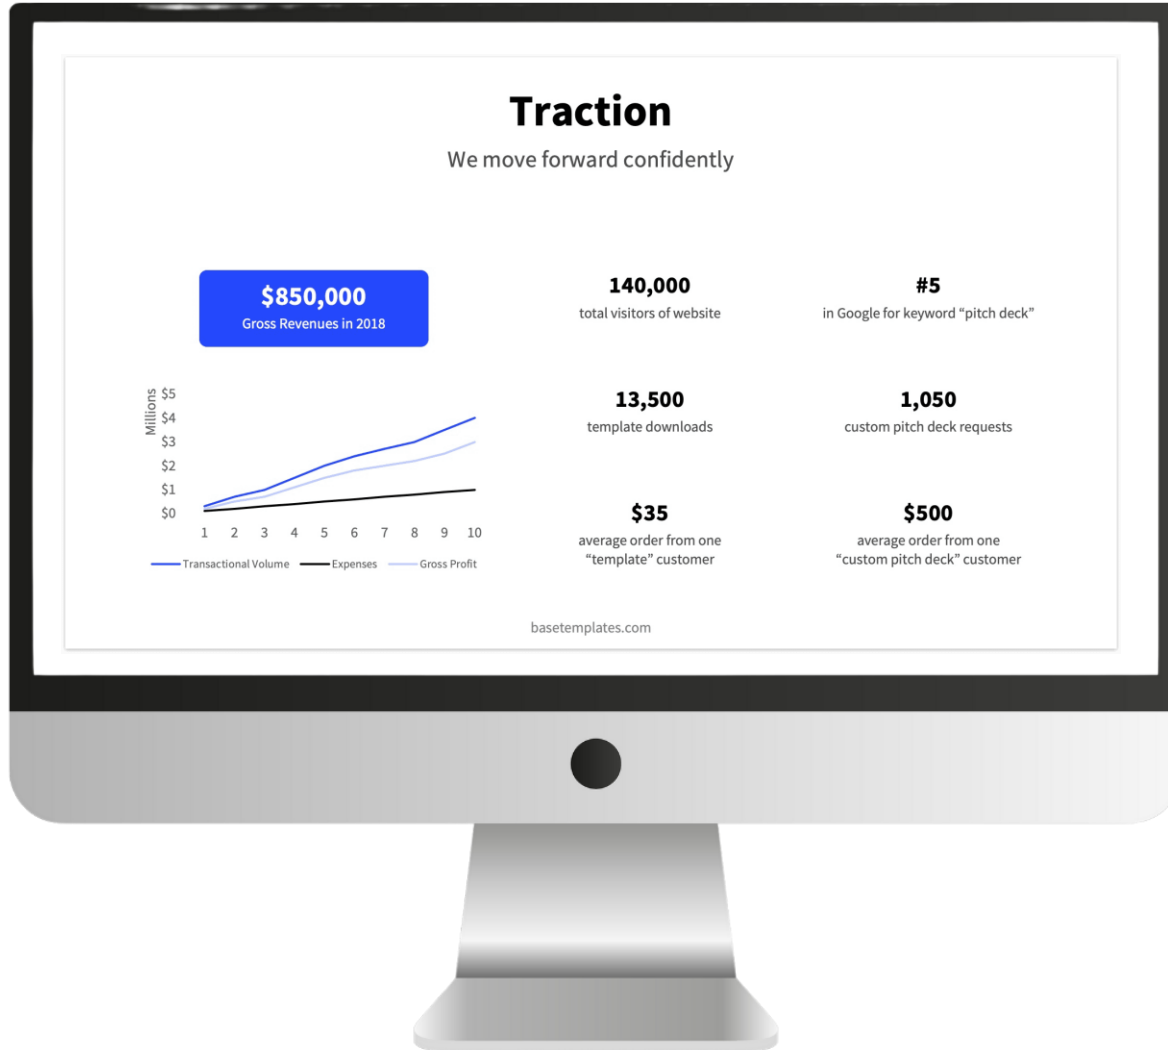

Slides in a pitch deck – Competition

Like the market size slide, there's a lot of depth to the competition slide. It shows how well you know your industry and how you compare yourself to other players in it.

Choose the comparison method (and graphics) that highlight your competitive advantage and show both large and small players.

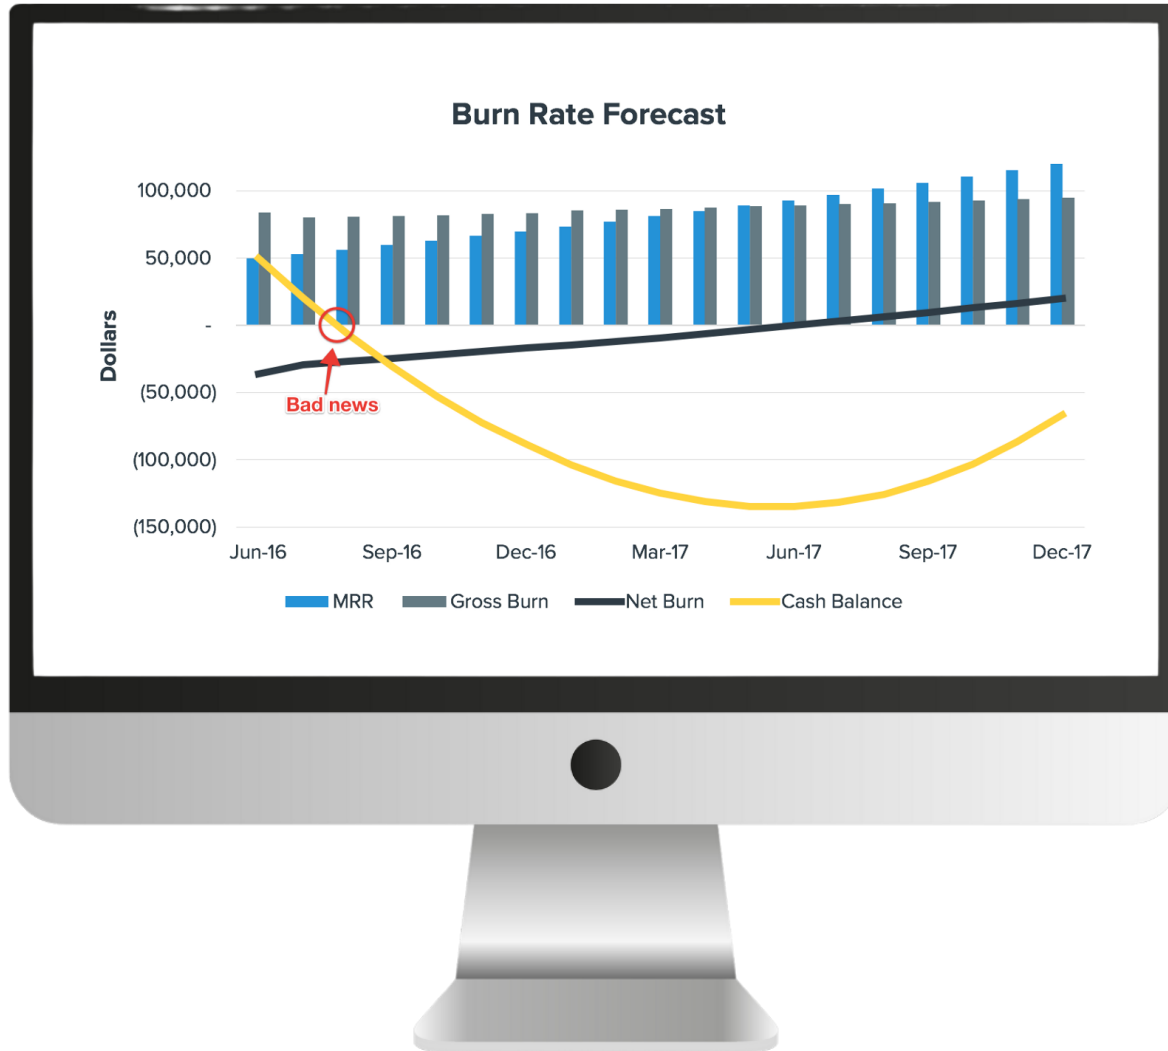

Slides in a pitch deck – Traction

Traction is the best way to build investors' confidence in you.

It demonstrate actual results and accomplishments. It also demonstrate what KPIs you're monitoring and set's investors expectation for the future (growth rate)

Slides in a pitch deck – Finance

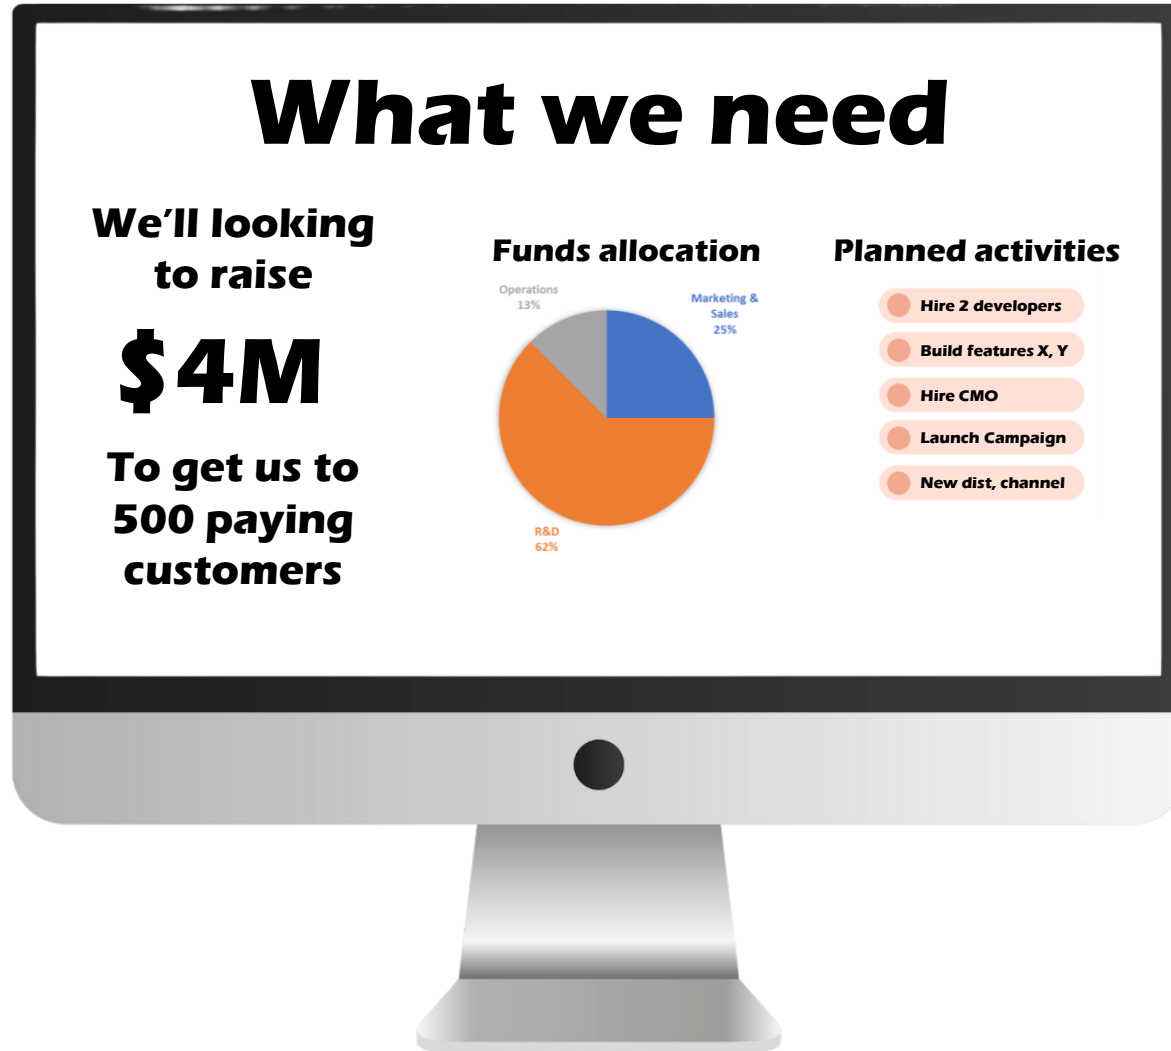

Every founder must have a solid understanding of the startup financial numbers

Investors want to see your burn rate, runway, CAC/LTV, CAGR, ARR, MRR and projections moving forward, break even point and any other relevant financial data.

This is how investors talk so to build confidence with them you need to show you understand and control your numbers

Slides in a pitch deck – The Ask

Investors want to know what is your next milestone, how are you planning to get there, how much money you need to survive the journey and (if possible) what are the terms you're willing to give them.

This slide, which typically comes at the end of the deck should answer all these questions.

Slides in a pitch deck – Transition Slides

Transition slides are helpful to give context to the next section of your pitch.

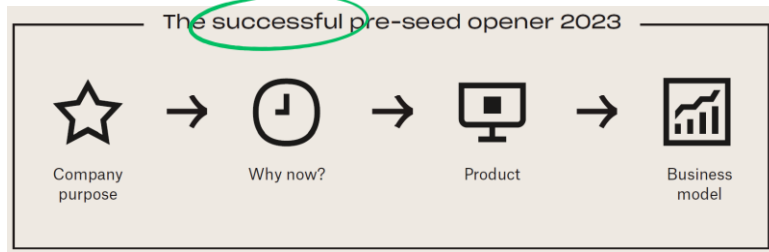

If the deck is built like a good story, one slide should naturally lead to the next and you won't need them...

Building Your Deck

Let's talk about the structure of the deck and what is the right order for your slides

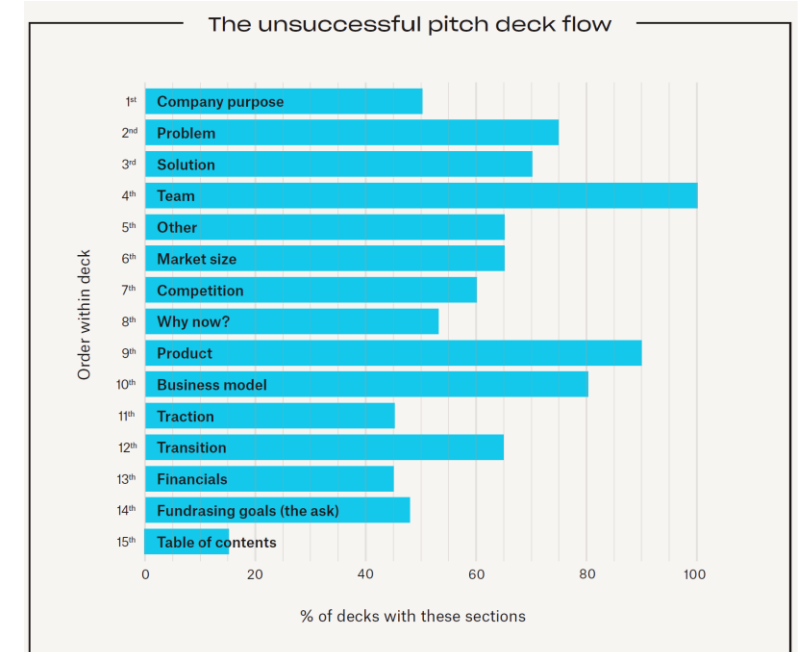

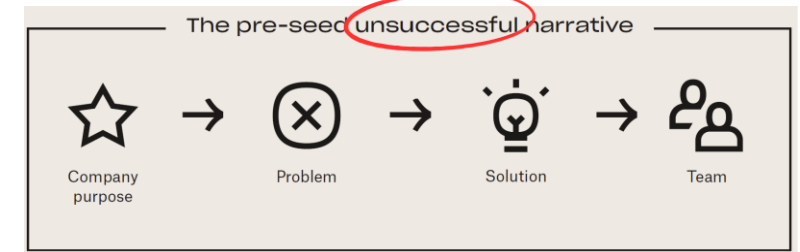

Slide Order at Successful Vs. Unsuccessful Decks

The analysis of successful vs. unsuccessful early-stage pitch decks shows the importance of deep market understanding (why now) and business model over competition and problem/solution

Important Note: Different decks have different slides (as seen by the % on the x axis) highlighting the importance of tailoring your deck to your strengths

How to Build an Engaging Deck

A deck is a piece of content and should be built as such. Luckily, the formula for engaging content has long been established and validated by many content creators online

Important note:

Each slide type can be one or many slides, depending on the complexity and amount of data to show. Remember that nothing is set in stone and the flow and story should determine the slides order.

How to Build a Slide

1

Message per slide

Use numbers and visuals instead of text (when possible)

Remember that the deck is here to help, not to be the center of attention

Putting it all Together

Preparation

1. Find your differentiation
2. Define your business model
3. Collect relevant growth metrics
4. Build your team
5. Answer the “why now” question
6. Answer the “why you” question
7. Define your roadmap
8. Define your ask

Build Your Story

Order the content according to the model to build a compelling story

Fine tune the story to have flow

Create your Slides

Create the graphics to support your presentation

The Workflow of Building a Deck

About the Author

Hey,

I'm Avinoam Kaminski. Father of 3, a serial entrepreneur and an early-stage investor.

I sat on every side of the table (founder, investor, board member, advisor etc.) of the table giving me a unique perspective on the gap between founders and investors.

I've spent years trying to bridge that gap, helping founders better understand what investors want...

Overwhelming?

Let me help you:

- Build your elevator speech*
- Optimize your messaging, business model & roadmap*
- Answer all the hard business questions
- Write your story and build your pitch deck
- Build the strong strategic network you need to grow your startup
- Prepare you for investors meetings
- And help you get the funding you need to build your dream...

All you have to do is to reach out by mail to Avinoam@buildingstartups.net